

All of Us

RESEARCH PROGRAM

SAVE THE DATE

Date: Tuesday, October 22, 2019

Time: 1 – 4 p.m. CT

Location: Oklahoma City, OK

All of Us* Research Program Listening Session

The Southern Plains Tribal Health Board, the Oklahoma delegation from the National Institutes of Health (NIH) Tribal Advisory Committee, and the All of Us Research Program will offer a listening session on Tuesday, October 22, 2019 from 1 – 4 p.m. in Oklahoma City, OK.

The All of Us Research Program, part of NIH, was established to accelerate health research and medical breakthroughs to foster an era of precision medicine for all. Precision medicine is health care that is based on you as an individual. It takes into account factors like where you live, what you do, your genes, and your family health history. The goal of precision medicine is to be able to tell people the best ways to stay healthy and may help health care teams find the treatments that will work best if you get sick.

The goals for this event are to:

- Have All of Us share information about the program, and
- Give Tribes, urban Indian organizations, and researchers the opportunity to ask questions and provide input as All of Us identifies priorities and opportunities for including AI/AN populations in the research program while also implementing the appropriate protections to comply with Tribal research oversight and laws.

Information about the All of Us Research Program can be found on the Tribal Engagement webpage at: <https://allofus.nih.gov/all-us-tribal-engagement>. The Tribal Collaboration Working Group report “Considerations for Meaningful Collaboration with Tribal Populations” can be found at https://allofus.nih.gov/sites/default/files/tribal_collab_work_group_rept.pdf. If you have questions about this event, please email the All of Us Tribal Engagement team at AOUTribal@nih.gov.

Mark your calendars and watch for registration information soon!